About Me

Hi! I'm Shreeyaa Pore, a graduating student of Animation and Motion Graphics. My love for art began when my grandmother guided my hand through my first drawing. My grandfather encouraged me to draw portraits and taught me that eyes are the most powerful tools of expression. This shaped how I see characters and the stories they tell.

I'm also a trained Kathak dancer. Dance was my first way of expressing emotion without words. It taught me the power of silent storytelling. Animation became a natural extension of that. It gave me the space to bring characters to life with feeling, rhythm, and movement.

Today, I see myself as a storyteller. I draw from my own emotions and experiences to create work that feels honest and human. My goal is to use animation to move people, start conversations, and connect with audiences from all walks of life.
